

Alannah Malia (Boyles) Fletcher

October 28, 1976 - September 17, 2018

Alannah Malia (Boyles) Fletcher, passed away September 17, 2018 at her home in rural Holden, Missouri. Alannah wrote the following just before her passing.

"My world is surrounded by words

Books in stacks and piles

Pencils in my hair, rolling along the floor

Notebooks arranged by size, like tiles

Questions and answers both within,

Words ranging about, stories crying out

"Write me" "read me" "begin"

Almost an obligation hanging on my pencil lead

To learn it all, read it all, process everything

Like this acquired knowledge will deeply embed

Give me skills, make me a beacon of light

Let me save the world, or maybe just myself.

A lot to expect from Jim Butcher, right?"

The family is requesting instead of flowers and gifts, just Read a book

“ I'll miss Lani's dry wit, her critical thinking skills, and her love of nature and science. It's a shame she left so long before her time. Our condolences to all.

“ Truly saddens me to see such a beautiful life be ended way to soon. Alannah always cared deeply about her friends. I can remember riding bus 9 with her as we were kids and always having lots of laughs on our way to and from school in Holden. She always seen the best in everyone. Praying that she has found internal peace as she is in heaven with her big brother Tim. May your family have peace knowing this. Many prayers and much love. Sincerely, Erin (Day) Younce
