“ With a smile and a laugh that would brighten anyone’s worst day Aunt Joyce could fill a room with her energy of uncompromised humility and joy. Anyone who had any contact with my aunt would feel at home at once. Smart, wise and with a keen perception that cut through pretense Aunt Joyce opened her heart and arms for all. Aunt Joyce’s grace and unselfish giving is legend, though one would never have heard anything about it from her. She walked in faith and love that one could feel from thousands of miles away. I know from personal experience.

“ The evening is starting to chill a bit, in that swing on the front porch where we both sat, counting headlights on that highway. So you wonder who you are, where your going tonight, or when was the last time that you saw her eyes, she says your never going to win if you never ever play, and baby never be scared. “
